THREE ARE APPOINTED BY EXECUTIVE ORDER
President Waives Civil Service Rules in Christmas Favors Before Departure.
Before his departure for Pass Christian, President Wilson issued executive orders waiving the civil service rules in three appointments to the classified service. One of these orders authorized the appointment of Mrs. Mary Hill Dunn as a clerk in the Navy Department "without compliance with the civil service rules." Mrs. Dunn is the wife of Charles A. Dunn, who was employed in the Secretary's office of the Navy Department for more than twenty-three years, he having resigned March 15, 1900, as clerk at $1,800 per annum because he was afflicted with tuberculosis. For the greater portion of the period since that date he has been confined at the Naval Hospital, Las Animas, Col., and his wife and two small children are without means of support.
Husband's Service Recognized.
"While employed in the Navy Department," says the order, "Mr. Dunn rendered efficient service and was considered one of the most valuable clerks in the office. Mrs. Dunn has had considerable experience in office work outside of government service, and was recently temporarily employed in the census office and the pension office."
"The Secretary of the Navy is satisfied that she is well qualified to perform the duties of a clerkship and recommends that an executive order be issued authorizing her appointment. The civil service commission does not concur in the recommendation."
The President directs also that Albert K. Brown, now employed as a classified laborer in the bureau of fish and fisheries, may be promoted to the position of clerk at $1,200 per annum without examination under the civil service rules.
"Mr. Brown," the order says, "has for years performed without promotion work of a character that would justify much larger pay. This action is taken on account of Mr. Brown's experience and his admitted intelligence, skill and exceptional ability for the position for which his promotion is proposed. His promotion is recommended by the Secretary of Commerce, which is concurred in by Mr. Brown's superiors in the bureau of fish and fisheries. The civil service commission does not concur in recommending that an executive order be issued in this case."

Victim of Tuberculosis.
The third executive order authorizes the appointment of Herbert L. Halter as a rural carrier at Hershey, Neb., "with-out reference to the civil service rules." Mr. Halter was a clerk in the Navy Department from June 19, 1900, to September 27, 1911. His separation was due to his having contracted tuberculosis and he has since been confined at the Naval Hospital at Las Animas, Col. The disease has been arrested, and it is said to be necessary that he remain in a climate which is similar to his appointment as rural carrier was requested by the Secretary of the Navy and is concurred in by the Postmaster General and the civil service commission.
CARDS FOR THE INDEXING OF "DRUNKS" DISTRIBUTED
System Inaugurated by Judge Mul-lowny Extended to Various Police Stations.
In extension of the card index for "drunks" recently inaugurated by Judge Alexander R. Mul-lowny in the District branch of the Police Court, index cards are now being distributed to the various police stations, where records will be kept of all drunk cases.
By this card system Judge Mul-lowny hopes to keep track of all "drunks" who are arrested. The record will show whether the person charged with drunkenness was arrested and fails to appear for trial, or is tried and convicted.
To Take Cards to Court.
When a person is arrested, his name, address, occupation and age is to be taken by the clerk in the police station and entered on one of the cards. When the policeman who made the arrest goes to the Police Court the next morning, he is to take the card with him and file it with the clerk of the court.
When the card system was inaugurated about one month ago by Judge Mul-lowny the information to be filed was obtained by the clerk of the court. In that way only those who appear for trial are entered on the cards. By the new method, all cases of drunkenness will be recorded.

DEATH FOLLOWS RESCUE.
Member of Schooner's Crew Falls Overboard Near Plum Point.
George W. Demmy, one of the crew of the bay schooner Annie E. Masch, Capt. T. P. Jones, early in the week accidentally fell overboard from the schooner as it was passing Plum point, Chesapeake bay, on her way to Baltimore. At the time Demmy went into the water there was a half gale blowing, but Capt. Jones succeeded in reaching the man after several minutes of hard effort and picked him up. When he came aboard the boat Demmy was but partially conscious and was in such weakened condition from exposure and the cold water that Capt. Jones at once headed his vessel for Solomons Island, the nearest point at which medical attention could be obtained, but before reaching there the man died.
Demmy was a native of Merchantsville, N. J., and had a family there. His body has been sent to his home.

WOMEN WORTH WHILE.

THEIR FRIVOLITIES, INTERESTS AND HOBBIES.

MME. IBRAHIM ZIA.

Young, pretty and vivacious, Mme. Ibrahim Zia is a smiling argument in favor of international marriages. She is the daughter-in-law of Zia Pacha, Turkish ambassador to the United States. More than this, she is an American and the first woman from any Turkish embassy or any Turkish family of high birth to go freely into society, to walk unveiled through the streets and to wear the latest styles from Paris.
Born of American parents, Mme. Zia was educated abroad and made her debut in New York when she was nineteen years old. At twenty she was married to Ibrahim Zia, who is now second secretary of the Turkish embassy. At the time of Mme. Zia's marriage, however, her husband was a student at the Turkish embassy at Rome. At the Italian capital this young American was the only woman in the Ottoman envoy's household. When King Victor Emmanuel of Italy and his queen gave a great dinner in honor of Haki Pacha, grand vizier of Turkey, Mme. Zia entered the state dining room of the palace on the arm of the king. She wore a stately gown of silver brocade and jewels which, for all their splendor, could not rob her of her girlish charm. And she was frankly and unashamedly American with the merit of extreme youthfulness and the poise and dignity of the perfectly bred woman of whatever age or country.
At the time of her marriage Mme. Zia was an accomplished linguist, speaking French, German, Italian and Spanish. Since her marriage she has mastered her husband's tongue, with him as her teacher. She is devoted to the study of literature and philosophy and declares that she has read the Koran many times for the sheer joy that is to be had from a book of such transcendent literary beauty.

The writer once asked Mme. Zia if she ever hoped to become a factor in the educating and broadening of oriental women. Her answer revealed an interesting viewpoint.
"That question sounds typically like us Americans," she said. "In the American mind, or I may say the Anglo-Saxon mind, there is a misconception regarding the women of the orient. Why, I always feel as if I had everything to learn from those women and pathetically little to teach them.
"The oriental woman, instead of being a half barbaric creature, as some believe, is the flower of a civilization older and in many respects finer, than that achieved by the occident. When I first went to Turkey, the oriental woman was a revelation to me. Her reading, the extent of her information on public questions, her intelligent interest in these questions and the tremendous influence which she exerts on public movement in her own country were contrary to the opinions I had formed of her.
"Without a voice in public affairs, the women of Turkey make themselves a powerful factor in those affairs."
How is that for the average American woman's conception of the oriental woman as a veiled mystery, the slave of a selfish tyrannical husband, and a creature wholly lacking in the independence and intelligence of her occidental sister?
Mme. Zia herself is unusually well informed on all public questions. She is also an inveterate newspaper reader and has American and foreign papers served daily with her coffee. In diplomatic circles she is very popular, and she also has a wide circle of friends in resident society.

CHARGED WITH ATTEMPT TO SNATCH POCKETBOOK
Haywood Smith, Colored, Locked Up at Police Station, But Denies the Accusation.
Charged with attempting to snatch a pocketbook from Miss Ethel M. Dykes of 3000 9th street northwest, Haywood Smith, colored, giving his address as 19 Hanover street northwest, was arrested this morning by Policeman Mellen and locked up at the first precinct police station. Smith denied the charge, and said that Miss Dykes' complaint had resulted from a fight.
Miss Dykes was near the entrance to the National Museum, where she is employed as a clerk, about 10 o'clock this morning when she states a colored man made an unsuccessful attempt to rob her. She screamed and ran into the building, she informed the police, and Smith soon afterward was arrested.
The accused man says he was walking in the direction of Center Market, and that he had both hands in his pockets. He was in a deep study, he said, and came near colliding with Miss Dykes. Before he could offer an apology, he told the police, she made an outcry and his arrest followed.
Steamer Templemore Sold.
The British steamer Templemore, which, while on a voyage from Baltimore to England, caught fire at sea and was abandoned by her crew, and was later picked up by the revenue cutter Andromeda, and still burning, towed into Boston, was this week sold to the United States. Her purchasers will break up the fire-scorched hull for the metal in it after clearing out what remains of the cargo of the vessel. The Templemore when she left Baltimore had aboard a miscellaneous cargo valued at a million dollars, and the ship itself was worth as much more. The sale of the hull, it is said, was made by the insurance underwriters, to whom she was turned over when towed in.

PREDICTED CELEBRATION WILL BE ANNUAL AFFAIR

Expected to Rank With "Safe and Sane Fourth" Exercises, Is Conviction Today.

That Washington's community Christmas tree and celebration is to be made an annual institution, taking rank with the public "safe and sane Fourth" exercises, was a settled conviction today among those who had charge of the arrangements.
Expressions of opinion among those who witnessed the celebration showed a unanimous verdict in favor of repeating the community Christmas tree next year. Congratulations from many sources have reached those in charge. All seemed to agree that the ceremonies fill a long-felt want in Washington.
Cuno H. Rudolph, chairman of the executive committee in general charge of the celebration, pledged himself to do everything possible to make the affair an annual one.
Calls It Unqualified Success.
"It was an unqualified success," said Mr. Rudolph. "I feel that it should be made an annual occurrence. I shall be glad to do all that I can for other trees in years to come. I know that it pleased the public. I am sure that if a vote were taken among those who were there one hundred out of every hundred would vote in favor of it being given again."
Mrs. Clara D. Nech, chairman of the committee on dances, also said that she had heard many expressions of approval of the idea.
"I can only judge of the public's impression of the tree that I have heard made," she said. "Many friends and many perfect strangers have stopped me to say that it was the most wonderful Christmas of their lives."

Cantata at Ingram Church.
A Christmas cantata, "Santa Claus at the Court of England," was given at the Ingram Memorial Church last night by the children of the Sunday school. The principal parts were taken by Ernest Saeger, Miss Mildred Sweeney, Harry Caldwell and Miss Ruth Ayler.
Twenty-four children in costume, representing England, Holland, Germany, Norway, Sweden, and America, sang the folk songs of the countries they portrayed. Little Wheeler Braden, Kilburn Castell and George Rothwell took the part of brownies. Solos were sung by Miss Sweeney, Miss Ruth Ayler and Julian Vier. A flag drill followed. In which the children used the flags of the countries they represented. Several tableaux were also on the program.
The entertainment was under the direction of Mrs. J. H. Sweeney. Rev. Dr. Praxell, pastor of the church, was presented with a gift of money on the part of the children of the church and the Sunday school, in token of their appreciation of his work during the past year.

FOR BEST FLAVORED MILK.
Tests Show Bran and Corn Ration Most Favored.
The Department of Agriculture has just concluded a series of interesting experiments to determine the effect on the flavor of milk of feeding different kinds of rations to cows. The department has decided in favor of bran and corn as producing the finest flavored milk.
The experiments were conducted to ascertain the correctness of the theory of some dairymen that the feeding of crushed oats to cows would improve the flavor of the milk. Six cows were used in the experiments and the various kinds of rations were fed to them. In all fifty samples of milk were passed on the various samples of milk from these cows. Of these six cows five showed a preference for the milk from cows fed on crushed oats, twenty-five preferred that from the bran and corn ration, while nine expressed no choice.
"The results," says a statement issued by the department, "show that in these rations not only was there no marked difference in favor of the crushed oats as a feed to improve flavor, but, if anything, the ration containing bran and corn was more successful in producing a fine-flavored milk."
John Fuller, chief engineer at J. S. Newell's sawmill at Stony Creek, Va., was killed Monday - being caught in the main driving wheel of the mill.

SAVES LANDS TO U. S.

Bill Would Withdraw From Entry Those With Radium-Bearing Ores.

Representative Martin D. Foster, chairman of the House committee on mines and mining, has announced that he is preparing a bill to withdraw from public entry all public lands in the west known to contain carnotite and other radium-bearing ores. He is to take this step because of information that foreign syndicates are seeking to get possession of rich deposits of radium-bearing ores in Utah and Colorado.
So acute is the situation that Dr. Howard B. Kelly, a surgeon of Johns Hopkins University at Baltimore, and two other physicians have personally advanced $50,000 to the bureau of mines to aid in the search for radium-bearing ores in this country. These physicians have contributed this money out of their own personal funds for the sole benefit of the public. The radium which is obtained will be for the use of American scientists in treating cancer.
